Landscape Planning in Lombardy Region.

Scientific and political analysis about landscape concept is a central and interdisciplinary debate. This debate involves public and constitutional law. The semantic richness of landscape term allows building of a plural system of administrative instruments for an integrated governance of territorial policies. Purpose of this work is demonstrate that governance approach is a fit category of thinking and a complete way to pursuing landscape objectives.

The implementation of environmental law- first partecipatory and information principle- asks meeting with a planning theory perspective to guarantee a good landscape governance. A comparative and historical analysis of regional planning systems supports the study of landscape governance as operational field of integrated administrative law of landscape
